ISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.

ONE BROILER WAS MISSING

Rastus Couldn't Bear to See Thirteen at Table, So He Re-

Colonel Dobson was making his usual daily tour of his preserves, inspecting the gardens, both flower and vegetable, and had now come to the livestock. As far as the eye could see everything in the stables and the barns was in ship-shape order, and the colonel was somewhat inclined to compliment Rastus on the general condition of matters in his charge, but decided to withhold final commendation until the chicken-coop had been inspected. And here it was that the only noticeable shortcoming was to be found. A careful count of the spring brollers showed that there was one missing. The brood had natched out some time before just 13 little chicks, and they had safely reached the point where the colonel's mouth watered in anticipation of their immediate service upon his table. Three careful counts demonstrated beyond all question that their number had been reduced by one. Twelve broilers and no more were there, and the colonel turned a cold eye upon Rastus.

"There are only 12 broilers here, Rastus," he said, with a steely cut to his voice.

"Yassuh, Cunnell," said Rastus. 'Jess 12 nice fat broilers, suh. Mighty fine lot o'chickens, Cunnell."
"There were 13, Rastus," said the colonel, severely.

"Yassuh, dey certainly was dat number, suh," said the old darky. "Well?" said the colonel, incisively.

'Go on." "Wuh-well, yuh see, Cunnell," stammered the old man, "Ah wanted to save dat air brood foh you table, suh, an' when I done remember, suh, dat 13 am a onlucky numbah, suh, an' found dem 13 broilers a-setting down to deir tables a eatin' togeddah, suh, Ah jess couldn't set dah mahself and see dem takin' no chances, so I jess done removed one ob 'em, suh." "Did you kill it?" demanded the colonel. "Wuh-well, Cunnell, ah-ah wrung his neck, suh, and nacherily he died," said Rastus. "And what then?" persisted the colonel.

"Wuh-well, Cunnell," said the old man, with an appealing smile. "yuh know, suh, dey ain't many niggahs as would waste a dead chicken, suh."-Harper's Weekly.

When Sleeping.

It is well to sleep from infancy with the head uncovered, as the hair thus retains its beauty longer. On retir ing the hair should be raised high above the ears, without pulling, plaited loosely in a single braid and tied with a silk or cotton ribbon. Avoid wearing starched nightcaps, as the starch is injurious to the hair. When old age approaches it may be well to wear nightcaps.

Brush the hair well, using a soft brush, on going to bed and in the morning. The best brushes are made with short bristles. If the hair is combed from the roots downward without being divided in several parts, much harm may be done to it. The hairs would certainly be broken off, become uneven and could never be made to look cared for. It is an excellent thing to smooth the hair with the

SWIFT POSTMEN OF VENICE

They Are Clever in Dodging the Canals and Know Every Street in City.

Probably the letter carriers of Venice are the most ingenious in the world. They know how to dodge every waterway, turning up on their routes with a precise regularity that convinces you they have mapped every scrap of the damp city's dry land on their brains. If you go to your destination by gondola they can beat you thereto by a good bit of What they know about canals has been applied by them to navigation on land and they know every tiny street in the city.

Of course, there are postoffice gondolas, too, gay yellow things that quite outcolor the yellow sunlight, and any day you happen over the bridge of the Rialto you will see them fastened to their red-and-gold poles just underneath the old palatial Fondaco del Tedeschi, which, centuries ago, by decree of the Venetian senate, two famous architects of early days, Girolamo Tedesco and Giorgio Spavento, built for the use of the many German merchants then living in Venice (somewhere about the year 1505) .-Travel Magazine.

CRIME AMONG FRENCH YOUTH

Most of the Murders and Assaults Committed by Members of the Rising Generation.

There is considerable lamentation in France over the fact that most of the murders and dangerous assaults which are chronicled in the columns devoted to crime are committed by members of the rising generation, young people whose ages vary from 15 to 21. Now a small boy, no more than ten years of age, has suddenly emerged from obscurity as the ringleader of a gang of thieves. This any thing but promising child had already been brought before the police commissary of the neighboring township in which he dwells, on a charge of appropriating other people's property. but in consideration of his youthful ness he was sent back to his parents. The lesson was lost on him, however, as a few days later he organized gang which promptly set to work with Whistling "Home, Sweet Home," as a will. Goods disposed for sale outside of shops in that township disappeared as if by magic, and every hour of the day one tradesman or another the back of Perry Ritchie, 11 years was hurrying to the police commissary with a woeful face to report his losses. - Paris Correspondence London Telegraph.
